COURT PROCEEDINGS .- Owing to the adjournment of the Civil List made some time ago, on account of the small pox, and the nic which seems to have seized so many of our country friends on the same account, the tast term of court was the smallest of any that we have had for years. But twelve of the Grand Jurors answered to their names. This is the minimum number, and as there can be no bill found without the consent of at least twelve Grand Jurors, it required the consent of every man. It was probably the smallest Grand Jury, in point of numbers, as the Judge remarked, ever empannelled in the county. The business before them was of a triting character. When we consider the number and heinospess of the crimes committed in the adjoining counties, this speaks well for the morals of our own. Too or three of the alleged crimes being mere neighborhood broils which a law suit always intensifies, sel dom pacifies, no bills were found.

A true bill was found against a couple of colored boys for the whipping of another boy. The Jury found the boys guilty of assault and battery, no words being deemed sufficient to justify an assault. The court then sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of one dollar and the costs of presecution.

Sister Odenbaugh plead guilty to an indict. ment found at June term, for selling liquor without license—was fined $20 and costs.

A number of politions for license to keep calling houss were presented. We understand that the President Judge was opposed to the granting of the same, remarking that no family of boys are safe within five miles of the destructive influence of these places. Under the pretence of keeping an eating house they almost invariably keep a tipling house. And that humbled them so successfully the night if they even do' confine, themselves to the before. "Brave boys are they." There are sals of "small drinks," so called, a taste is cultivated-for something stronger. The As- sist "loaded" revolvers, and pay no attention sociate Judges, however, were of a different to sex. opinion-or at least pretended to be-and overruled the Judge in a number of the cases

SMALL-Pox .- As this would seem to be made an all-absorbing topic in the county, however the excitement may have waned just among us and become altogether common-place, if ever mentioged, it may interest those who have such great dread of the discase to peruse the following, which we extract from a leading journal: "To prevent its ravages as far as possible, two means are resorted to. One is raccination, and the other control to the second to the control to er is seclusion of the sick. There is common ly altogether too much made of the latter and too little of the former.
